

Remarks at Election Registration Site

Secretary Condoleezza Rice

Port-au-Prince, Haiti
September 27, 2005

Well, it is very uplifting to visit this registration center and to see voters lined up here to register to vote. It is a very impressive system that the Organization of American States has helped the Haitian people put in. It's computerized. People are getting their National Identification Cards, which they will then use to vote. And it is really very impressive.

It's also impressive -- I learned that if you don't have a means of identification -- a birth certificate or a passport, then you can bring two witnesses and they can help you to register. So this is a very impressive system.

I want to thank the Electoral Commission, the Haitian Government and also the Organization of American States, which the United States has been supporting in this endeavor. I'm sure that more and more efforts like this are going to make the Haitian elections a great success.

Thank you.
2005/T14-2

Released on September 27, 2005

Published by the U.S. Department of State Website at <http://www.state.gov> maintained by the Bureau of Public Affairs.